THE MAGIC OF HAUT-BRION'S TERROIR

While famed for its legendary reds, Haut-Brion's magnificent terroir has also produced exceptional white wine since at least the early 18th century. Initially producing sweet wines, it was not until the late 1800s that the fine dry white wines came into their own. Every year, the uncompromising, meticulous work in the vineyards through the seasons, a bespoke vinification and ageing ensures the exceptional quality of these singular and acclaimed white wines.

THE HEIR OF TWO ICONS

La Clarté de Haut-Brion' grapes are grown on the Haut-Brion terroir, it is born of two prestigious estates: Château Haut-Brion and Château La Mission Haut-Brion. This new bottle reminds of the wine's extraordinary kinship: the bottle has adopted the shape of those of Château Haut-Brion, meanwhile, the label and capsule have taken in the codes of the eminent Château La Mission Haut-Brion.

A clear, golden colour, this white wine is made from a blend with a majority of Semillon (75%) bringing body and sweetness and Sauvignon Blanc grapes, bringing freshness and structure. The first nose is powerful and fruity, with lovely aromas of peach and quince and an unrivalled complexity. The first taste is smooth and full of flavour. The wine develops with rich body on the palate, almost sweet, giving a feel of Southern France. The finish, with some lovely bitter notes, is very refreshing. These are just a few of the reasons why wine enthusiasts around the world are keen to discover this incredibly fine and rare dry white wine: only approximately 1000 cases are produced every year.
